~~18 Children's Books With Characters of Color | A Cup of Jo~~
I bought this book for my 1 year old granddaughter and she loves it and carries it around with her continually. The pictures are true to life and help with object identification and with color recognition. The book is a board book and smaller size which makes it ideal as a first book for little children.

~~Board Books | Writing for Kids (While Raising Them)~~
After each page, the kids named the colors that were on Dog already, reinforcing color recognition and names. I was just commenting the other day that I wish there were more Emma Dodd books, because I love them all. Next up, a very tricky color book, "Lemons Are Not Red" by Laura Vaccaro Seeger.

18 Children's Books With Characters of Color After our post on raising race-conscious children , we wanted to share some books for kids featuring characters of different races and ethnicities. Some talk about race directly (like A Piece of Home), and some are simply about children's everyday adventures (such as Airport).

The Color Kittens are in pursuit of the elusive color green as they mix and match "buckets and buckets and buckets" of color. After several false starts, "it came to pass, they made a green as green as grass." I buy books I think will interest my little one, but I want to enjoy reading them as well.

~~My Small Board Book of Colors~~

A trend in board books is to republish books that have been popular sellers in hardcover/paperback. Board books are expensive to produce, and at the same time, parents want to pay less for them, so publishers may prefer to go with a proven story rather than a new one.

~~Colours : a little book of colours (Book, 2017) [WorldCat.org]~~

With a volume for each color of the rainbow—red, orange, yellow, green, blue, and purple—these six chunky board books feature simple peek-through cutouts that transform as you turn the pages. Simple text prompts parents and children to label objects and observe lighter and darker shades of the same color family, promoting a new way of noticing the colorful—and surprising—world around us.
