Alan Ayckbourn is renowned for rarely altering his scripts once complete and produced, but during the pre-West End tour of Confusions, he did make a notable alteration. For her part in A Talk In The Park , Pauline Collins struggled to get a grip on the dialogue - apparently changing accents and performance every night to try and make it work.

Alan Ayckbourn is famed for his naturalistic dramas centred around the small discussions and disagreements between couples. Confusions is no different. Offering us insights into the lives of ordinary people through three episodes, this condensed performance of Ayckbourn's one-act play was entertaining but lacked the energy required by the original script.
