Marantz PM-Ki Pearl Lite
Marantz PM-Ki Pearl Lite is one hell of a good amplifier. I believe also value of new one is worth its price. I have to say that I had 5 times more expensive amps at home on trial and at the end I opted for this fine Marantz PM-Ki Pearl Lite amplifier. Whatever Marantz did it did excellent and this gear is producing music.

The result is a truly no-compromise masterpiece. An icon of perfection. "It's worth it," says Ken. When you first encounter the new Ki Pearls, the first thing you notice are their unique "Silk Pearl" finishing. The first of its kind for Marantz. In the Marantz PM-Ki-Pearl by Ken Ishiwata, everything from the sculpted looks—reminiscent of classic Marantz products—to the feel of the silky, torquey volume control, the crispness of the source switch, and the surety of the resulting click of the relay, seems to have been carefully measured and applied.

I've been looking at the Marantz PM Ki Pearl, which can be found used for under my price ceiling of 2K. The Yamaha AS-1000 looks nice but I have never been a huge fan of the Yamaha "house" sound. Are there any other quality integrated amps with tone controls that I should be considering?

The Marantz PM-Ki-Pearl-Lite Integrated Amplifier (which I think I'll hereafter refer to simply as the "Pearl Lite" in order to save a few trees, not to mention the wear and tear on my computer keyboard) presents a solid, no-nonsense front fascia to the world. If we ignore the tone controls, there are really only seven controls on it.

They redesigned the large double shielded Toroidal transformer's circuitry to optimise bandwidth power: a massive energy reserve to drive even the most demanding of speakers with absolute ease. And, because 'vinyl' is back, the PM-Ki Pearl Lite supports Phono MM also with current feedback technology. So much has been given.

In my review in the February 2009 issue of Marantz's SA-1152 SACD/CD player ($3599.99), I said that "buying [an SACD] player in 2009 necessitates an act of faith similar to the one turntable buyers faced back in 1992." The negative reaction to this from the besieged SACD community was as intense as it was irrational.

TAS reviewed the PM11s3 and the SA11s3. Stereophile reviewed the Ki Pearl Reference amp and an earlier model Reference power amp. All four pieces received very positive reviews. Marantz Reference gear can hold its own with anything anyway near its price range.

The Pearl also has a copper chassis. Whether it is worth that much more than the PM7004 price, thats up for debate (marantz are expensive even for the simplest things), but its definitely worth a bit more. So the saving of £400 on the Pearl compared to £100 on the 7004, makes for it to be more of a bargain and one i would go for.
