Prop Bet. A prop bet is a special kind of bet that has nothing to do with the outcome or final score of a game. Prop bets come in many different forms. Some of them are player-based — how many yards or touchdowns a specific player scores. Some of them are based in live betting, i.e. if a team scores on a specific drive.

When betting on red or black, the odds of choosing correctly are 18/38, and a fair payout for a $1 stake is $2.111. However, the house pays only $2 and keeps the difference. In that way, it guarantees itself a profit. A similar bias occurs in bookmakers' odds on horse races, soccer, and every other sporting event.
