Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind: "Who is this that darkens counsel by words without knowledge? ..." (Job 38:1-3, 7). The Lord challenged Job to recognize his limitations and acknowledged the presence of a being greater than himself who could speak in a still, small voice (1:12; 42:7). This is a reminder that human beings are not omniscient, and our understanding of the world is limited. We must surrender to the wisdom of a higher power and recognize our own fallibility.
